

NOTES ON CONTRIBUTORS

Jon Fennell (jfennell@hillsdale.edu) is Dean of Social Sciences at Hillsdale College. His primary interest is in issues that arise at the intersection of philosophy, politics, and education, including character education. He has written on figures as diverse as Nietzsche and C.S. Lewis.

Andrew Grosso (rector@trinityks.org) is the Rector of Trinity Episcopal Church in Atchison, KS, the Dean of the Bishop Kemper School for Ministry (www.bishopkemperschool.org), and Adjunct Professor of Systematic Theology at Nashotah House Theological Seminary in Nashotah, WI (www.nashotah.edu).

Charles Lowney (lowneyc@wlu.edu) received his M.A. from Boston College and his Ph.D. in philosophy from Boston University. He teaches at Washington and Lee University in Virginia. Additional articles of his that engage Polanyi can be found at his WLU website: <http://www2.wlu.edu/x23721.xml?InsertFile=x24523>

Tihamér Margitay (margitay@filozofia.bme.hu) is professor of philosophy at Budapest University of Technology and Economics. He is the director of Philosophy and History of Science PhD Program and the editor of POLANYIANA, the periodical of the Michael Polanyi Liberal Philosophical Association.

Kyle Takaki (ktakaki@hawaii.edu) is an independent scholar interested in complexity and its relations to the continuum of tacit knowing. He continues to struggle with aligning this personalist project with the pursuit of sophia amidst the fractures of modern philosophy.